to Take Place

The Military Ball, one of the outstanding social events of the spring term, will take place at the customary time, the evening before George Washington's birthday, in the Alumni gymnasium from 8:30 to 12 o'clock.

Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority had the highest ticket sales of any sorority for the Military Ball and the three Cadet Hops, it was announced yesterday, and thus the Queen of the Military Ball will be selected from that group at a meeting of Scabbard and Blade at 4:30 p. m. today, but will be kept secret until the evening of the Ball.

The ball is sponsored and directed by members of Scabbard and Blade, honorary military fraternity, and the features of the event will include the crowning of the Queen of the Ball, the annual spring pledging of Scabbard and Blade, and the introduction of the new military sponsors, who are chosen by the members of the R. O. T. C. regiment.

The grand march will begin at 9:15 o'clock and will be led by the Queen of the Ball, who will be chosen by the members of the honorary organization. She will be escorted by William Eversole, captain of Scabbard and Blade. Following the queen will be the unit commanders and sponsors, the new guests in double formation. The sponsors will form the court for the pledges in columns of two, and the queen.

Captain Eversole will crown the queen, following her ascent to the throne, and with the assistance of cadet officers, will present favors to all the ladies.

A special no-break has been arranged in honor of the new pledges of Scabbard and Blade immediately after their tapping by the queen, which will take place between the fifth and sixth regular no-breaks.

PHILO BENNETT CONTEST OPENS

Prize of Twenty Dollars To Be Awarded Person Writing
Best Article on Government Policies

Manuscripts for the annual Philo M. Bennett prize, awarded for the best paper on some subject of parliamentary government or history, must be turned in at President McVey's office before May 1, according to Professor Edward Tutthill, head of the history department and chairman of Philo M. Bennett Award committee.

The prize this year will probably amount to twenty dollars, according to Professor Tutthill. The amount of the prize is determined by the interest collected on a fund of five hundred and fifty dollars, four hundred dollars of which was given to the University by Mr. Bennett in 1904, when the first competition for this prize was held. The sum has reached as high as forty dollars.

The papers must be at least three thousand words long and related to the general topic of the significance of dictatorship in relation to the principles and development of parliamentary government. All undergraduates are eligible to compete. Contestants must not sign the manuscripts, as an identification number will be assigned to each in order to assure impartiality in judgment.

A committee of three, composed of Professor Tutthill, and two other members to be appointed by Dr. McVey, will decide on the papers. The results will be announced in June at the Commencement exercises. The committee reserves the right to withhold the award, should all entries fail to come up to past standards.

Persons interested in further details should consult Professor Tutthill.

Journalism Grad

K., and Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity, purchased the Hardin County Enterprise, a weekly paper published in Elizabethtown. Mr. Carter graduated from the University in 1934, bought the paper from its owners, and will take immediate possession. He was formerly connected with the Campbellsville News before purchasing the Enterprise.

Government Wins Smashing
Victory In Supreme Court Decision On Gold Clauses

Bare Majority of Court Rules in Favor of New Deal in Delayed Decision

VOTE IS 5 TO 4 IN IMPORTANT RULING

Chief Justice Hughes Heads
Majority; McReynolds
Leads Dissenters

Washington, Feb. 18.—(INS)—The government won a smashing victory today in the long-awaited gold cases in the Supreme Court—but by the narrowest possible margin, 5 to 4.

A bare majority of the court upheld the right of Congress to abrogate the gold clause in $75,000,000 in private bonds, and held that the holders of Liberty bonds and gold certificates, having suffered no loss in the devaluation of the dollar, cannot demand payment in gold or its equivalent in the devalued paper dollar, $1.69 to $1.

Chief Justice Hughes read the majority decisions, and was supported by Justices Brandeis, Stone, Roberts and Cardozo.

Associate Justice McReynolds, long noted for his conservatism on the bench, read the dissenting opinions, and was supported by Justices VanDevanter, Sutherland and Butler.

Justice Stone differed with the conclusions in one case, but supported the majority in its verdict. This was the case involving John M. Perry, New York lawyer, who had demanded either payment in gold or its equivalent in paper, at the new rate, for his fourth liberty bonds.

The 5-to-4 division was revealed after the reading of the majority opinions had been concluded.

It was a familiar division, 5 to 4, for the court had so divided on a number of important issues, with usually the same justices on the different sides of the question.

One striking sentence in Justice McReynolds' dissenting opinion was: "The Constitution, as many of us have known it, is gone."

Kittens To Play
Williamson High
Netmen Tonight

Freshmen on Two-Game Trip
Through Eastern Kentucky

Coach Paul McBrayer and his undefeated freshman basketball team left Monday morning on a two-game trip to the eastern part of the state where they were scheduled to meet the strong Pikeville college five last night. Tonight the Kittens play Ellis Johnson's Williamson High School cagers at Williamson, W. Va.

Pikeville college has the best team in the history of the school. They have defeated some of the best junior college teams of Kentucky, Ohio, and West Virginia. Should the Kittens win this game, they will have a good chance of finishing the season undefeated. In Benedict, Pikeville boasts of a forward who has averaged over 15 points a game. Dick Robinson, stellar guard of the freshman five, will probably be called on to guard Benedict.

Little is known of the Williamson team. Coach Johnson had one of the best teams in that state last year, and it is reported that the one this year is even better.

These players making the trip are: Combs, Craig, Davis, Hagan, Lutz, Robinson, Spicer, Voll, Scroggins, and Walker.

The team is due to arrive back Wednesday afternoon.

Firemen's Training School Concludes Sessions At U.K.

One hundred eighty members of fire departments of some fifty Kentucky cities attended the three-day training course offered to firemen which was held at the University of Kentucky Training school on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of last week. This school was one of the public service courses which have been planned for public employees of Kentucky.

Dr. J. W. Manning of the Bureau of Government Research of the University, was chairman of the University committee which was composed of Dr. L. H. Carter of the College of Commerce, Dr. E. W. Montgomery, sociology professor, and Dr. E. J. Asher, assistant professor in psychology.

The training school, which was the first of its kind for firemen of Kentucky, was under the auspices of the Kentucky Firemen's association, the University of Kentucky, and the Kentucky Municipal league. Cooperating organizations in the enterprise were the National Board of Fire Underwrit-

What, No Holiday?
Nope, No Holiday!

According to an announcement from the Registrar's office, there will be no holiday in observance of Washington's birthday. Heretofore there has been a holiday, but because these has been another day added to the Christmas vacation, it was deemed unwise to interrupt classes for so short a time. This is the first time in a number of years that the University has not observed this holiday.

Museum Today

DR. VALLEAU TO SPEAK

The third in the series of Garden Center programs sponsored by the extension department will be held at the University museum today. The main topic of discussion will be "Consider The Landscaping." Mrs. Thomas Cleaver, Lebanon, will preside.

Among the speakers will be Dr. W. D. Valleau, plant pathologist at the University, Professor N. R. Elliott, Landscape Architect of the University, and Professor C. S. Crouse, Mining and Metallurgical Engineer of the University. Mr. Crouse is an authority on roses.

Mrs. Deren's talk will be followed by a discussion of "High Points in Central Kentucky Gardens," given by Mrs. Wilson Case Lawwill of Lexington. Mrs. Lawwill will first tell of John Bartram's garden in Philadelphia, which was one of the earliest and most famous in America. Then the speaker will give a description of Mrs. Louis Hagen's garden on the Russell Cave pike. This will be illustrated by pictures.

At the luncheon hour there will be an exhibit of books in the browsing room of the library on landscaping, the subject under discussion.

The Garden Center programs are being held for garden club members all over the state and are attracting a large number of garden enthusiasts. Mrs. F. Joel Swift, president of National Federation of Garden clubs, says, "The garden club, with its varied activities and opportunities, is about the most stable influences which we have at this time, when the whole world seems to be in a state of confusion."

MEDICAL TESTS

Examination of Students of University for Tuberculosis to Be Continued Under Supervision of KERA

Since the Kentucky Employment Relief association, state branch of the FERA, has taken over the testing of students of tuberculosis as a project, it is definitely known that the survey which was started last fall will be completed soon.

Under the KERA plan, Dr. Chambers will remain in charge of the work. Charles Tucker will act as statistician, and Marvin Dunn will assist in the laboratory.

At present over 1,200 students, about fifty percent of the total enrollment in the University, have been tested and more than 300 x-ray pictures made. All work pertaining to these cases will be completed within the next two weeks and on March 1, the testing of the remainder of the student body will begin.

Tests will be made for a period of twelve weeks and if not completed by then, an option has been secured to extend the time for a second twelve weeks.

There has been some difficulty in contacting a group of about one hundred professional students who attend only one class a week. The department requests that members of the group report at the dispensary for their tests as a one hundred percent survey is desired.

Final Results Of

He afterwards returned to the University and continued his work. After graduation, he worked for two years on the Lexington Herald, and then joined the Associated Press bureau at Louisville, being transferred to Nashville last September.

Powerful Last Half Rally
Gives Wildcats 38-36 Win

Knoxville, Tenn., Feb. 16.—Only a powerful last half rally brought to a climax by Garland Lewis' long shot from the side, gave Kentucky Wildcats a 38-36 victory over Tennessee and preserved their undefeated conference record.

Trailing at intermission, 20-12, the 'Cats took on new life at the opening of the second period and began to make good their numerous opportunities.

Throughout the initial half, the Kentuckians missed shots repeatedly, while the Vols took advantage of their tries to pile up an eight point lead.

It was only when the last period got underway that the Kentucky machine began to click in earnest, scoring ten points before the surprised Vols could even handle the ball. Edwards was then banished on personals and for a time the 'Cat attack faltered. However, the insertion of Ralph Carlisle was the needed spark. Carlisle played his best game of the season, as did Jim Goforth, who replaced Anderson at guard.

Editor and Publisher of Lexington Herald Died Monday Morning

FUNERAL SERVICES TO BE HELD TODAY

Had Been Ill Since Last September, When He Suffered Paralytic Stroke

Funeral services for Desha Breckinridge, editor and publisher of the Lexington Herald, who died at 6 a. m. yesterday at Hinata, his home on the Russell Cave pike, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Church of the Good Shepherd.

Mr. Breckinridge had been ill since last September, when he suffered a stroke of paralysis while in New York City.

A descendant of noted Kentucky families, Mr. Breckinridge was the son of Col. William C. P. Breckinridge and Issa Desha Breckinridge. He was born in Lexington Aug. 5, 1887. He attended Lawrenceville Preparatory School, New Jersey, and later Princeton University and the University of Virginia. He first prepared for law, a profession in which many members of his family had gained distinction, and was admitted to the Kentucky bar in 1893. Until 1900 he was a member of the law firm of Breckinridge and Shelby, of which his father was senior member.

Mr. Breckinridge first became interested in the editorial work of the Herald during the sound-money controversy in 1896, and became publisher in 1897 and editor in 1904. During the Spanish-American war he served as lieutenant in the Third Volunteer Engineers and as aide-de-camp to Major-Gen. J. C. Breckinridge, his uncle.

Mr. Breckinridge had long been interested in the breeding and raising of thoroughbred horses. He was one of the group that gave Kentucky its racing code and was interested in the establishment of the Kentucky state racing commission. He had supported in his editorial columns the pari-mutuel system of race-track betting at a time when it was under attack in Kentucky. Always a supporter of the cooperative system of marketing burley tobacco, he recently had become interested in the breeding and raising of thoroughbred horses. In the death of Desha Breckinridge, editor and publisher of The Lexington Herald, the students of the University have lost a true friend and an active benefactor. Coming from a fine southern heritage, Mr. Breckinridge's character was such that he was admired and respected by all who knew him.

His fame extends beyond the blue grass. During the great silver controversy in the 90s, metropolitan papers recognized the fearless editorials of Mr. Breckinridge and not only copied them, but fruitlessly sought to induce him to leave his beloved Kentucky and work on their editorial staffs.

Mr. Breckinridge bought a small newspaper, and, from its nucleus, he built one of the finest newspapers in Kentucky. At times his editorial policies were not to the best interests of circulation, but convinced that he was right, he did not abandon his views even though faced with ruin. Eventually, he overcame odds and his viewpoints were understood to be correct. He feared no man, and it was the knowledge of his great courage that made him respected by all who read his work or met him face to face.

He took active interest in the Department of Journalism at the University. The local chapter of Alpha Delta Sigma, national advertising fraternity, was named the Desha Breckinridge chapter in his honor and throughout the intervening years he was an active sponsor. For years, until the coming of the depression forced its discontinuance, it was a custom for the students of journalism at the University to take over an entire issue of the Herald and publish it for valuable experience. The sacrifice of time, money, and organization that this practice entailed did not deter Mr. Breckinridge from the yearly custom for he was happy in the knowledge that he was benefiting his friends, the students.

It can truthfully be said that his kindness will be missed, but his memory will remain to serve as an inspiration and a model to students of the University and especially to those who hope to embark on the tumultuous course of the Fourth Estate.

JAPAN AGAIN

In 1915 the Chinese Republic received a secret ultimatum from the Japanese Empire to the following effect: The President of China must accept Japanese protection of China and in return must sign over certain powers to the Emperor of Japan. These powers included control of the Chinese Army, the Chinese Navy, the Chinese Treasury, the Chinese Police, and other items of sovereignty. Finally Japan demanded that the President of China must keep all this secret, but he, trapped and desperate, had let Japan's ultimatum leak out to Frederick Moore, foreign correspondent for the Associated Press, and he sent the dispatch to the United States.

Upon receiving this dispatch Secretary of State, William Jennings Bryan, along with the General Manager of the Associated Press, Melville Stone, went to the Japanese Embassy, and over delicious tea, Tsuneo Chinda, Japanese Ambassador, convincingly denied the reports of this ultimatum, which later came to be known as Japan's "21 demands."

It was later found out that the Japanese Ambassador had lied, and the ultimatum was authentic. When questioned by Secretary Bryan, the Ambassador merely replied that his instructions had been to lie about the matter.

Last week the Japanese Empire repeated these "21 demands," to a certain extent, and again the officials were instructed to deny their authenticity.

They denied that Japan is pressing fresh demands upon China's wasp-waisted Dictator, Generalissimo Chiang Kalshek. The Japanese insist that Chiang on his own accord invited to a secret conference Akira Ariyoshi, Japan's Minister to China, and the Japanese Military Attache, Lieut. General Yoshimichi Suzuki.

According to Mr. Koki Hirota, whose father wrote the "21 demands" in 1915, Japan is willing to do the following if Chiang accepts the tutelage of Tokyo: (1) Assist China to withdraw from the League of Nations; (2) Furnish with military advisers; (3) Conclude a separate pact with China nullifying the Washington Nine-Power Treaty and other treaties; (4) Assume responsibility for the Japanese defense of China; (5) Exalt China by exchanging ambassadors whereas Japan has always refused to exchange any diplomats with China.

Just as in 1915 when the "21 demands" were denied, so were these dismissed by Mr. Hirota with the remark "so fantastic that I decline to comment upon it."

Now China comes to the board and blames all its troubles on President Roosevelt's policy concerning silver, saying that "Roosevelt is driving our Government into bankruptcy."

WHERE'S JOE COLLEGE?

In years past there has been a tendency on the part of the public to regard college as more of a playground for youth than an institution of learning. Much of this was caused by the wide ballyhoo given to the rah-rah college boy, better known as Joe College, and certain pranks such as the well-known fraternity "hell week."

The movies also may come in for a fair share of criticism along this line. They do not give us pictures of college which show the struggle made for learning by the majority of the students, but rather an exhibition of "hey-nonny-nonny" in order to produce a successful "musical comedy" box-office attraction.

The lack of seriousness and attention to studies claimed for the college undergraduate is belied by recent "worry" surveys conducted in several leading schools throughout the country. These surveys or polls attempted to find what the college student of today is most concerned about. They list a number of subjects such as sex, education, the future, examinations, graduation, appearance, drinking, grades, proficiency in athletics, failure, etc.

Beside each of these subjects are three brackets with the headings: "Not at all worried," "Weakly worried," and "Intensely Worried." Through these surveys it was found that 70 percent of the student population was intensely worried over the future and that more than half showed anguish over the thought of failure.

Such polls do reflect the true spirit of the college student of today. The large number of students who are working all or part of their way through college will substantiate this statement. The demand for more practical courses, courses which will give practical training for future work is also evidence of the sincerity of the student body of today. The increase in placement service bureaus, operated principally by students and which attempt to secure a position for the university graduate by listing his various qualifications, particularly his college record, also illustrate the fallacy of the "rah-rah college" theory. The fact that hazing and fraternity "hell-weeks" are dying out in strength is also indicative of a dislike for "horse play" on the part of the undergraduate.

Of course there are facts which belie the above statements, but are they truly paradoxical? Are the rumors of "wild parties" not nearly always exaggerated? On the other hand, does the college student "play" any more than the man or woman of the business world, particularly the "tired business man" who is known for his moments of weakness?

There are others who will point out outstanding exceptions, but with any theory there are always exceptions to the rule. Besides, is there any grounds for the belief that the college student plays more than the average individual? Life has its playboys and they are found everywhere, no matter where one may look.

Can we not then safely say that the attitude with which some persons regard college is not one free from unbiased opinion, but rather the result of prejudices gained from warped or otherwise distorted information passed on to them by certain well-known ballyhoo agencies, and that the college student of today is just as practical, if not more so, than the student of the past decades?

MUSICAL RESPECT

With an ear to the music and an eye to the future of his organization, Director John Lewis maintains one of the greatest assets to the University—the University of Kentucky Band, well known as the "Best Band in Dixie."

A sports writer on one of the South's larger newspapers gave the group of student musicians this illustrious title when writing his account of a football game between Kentucky and Georgia Tech, the contest resulting in a 3-3 deadlock. Throughout the entire game, the Kentucky eleven had shown a spirit not to be outshone until the end of the fray when the band played "My Old Kentucky Home" with musical interpretation that prompted the distinguished title. That brief episode in the University's history occurred many years ago, but the band never has failed to remember that it has a name which requires the same spirit of loyalty in order to retain it.

A member of the band has many hours of drill in complicated maneuvers for use on the athletic field, and long rehearsals for the concert stage. Weather conditions mean little when drills for a particular formation at a big football game are required, and a pep rally attendance, no matter how inconvenient, is demanded. The military personnel has regular hours and few impositions while the bandman is expected to fulfill the slightest whim of those in charge of any campus gathering.

The band has proven to be a consistent "winner" upon all occasions, and particularly during the football season. Regardless of the showing of the team, the appearance and performance of this group at a game or on parade remains to be surpassed. Down through the years, a spirit of determination and enthusiastic loyalty has been the rare attribute of our band.

JEST AMONG US

One thing that most people have overlooked is this advertising fight between the radio and the newspapers is that you can't turn off a newspaper.

If, as some persons believe, college is nothing in the world but a marriage bureau on a large scale, then it must be admitted that a lot of gals are successful in getting their degrees.

After reading that the convicts booed Hauptmann when he went to prison, we are beginning to believe that they are a more intelligent group than they have been given credit for.

"College professor declares there are five kinds of dumbness," says a news item. He must be a conservative sort of a chap.

Now that students have expressed themselves in favor of peace, we bet that among the more surprised are the night club operators.

By STYLUS

We have recovered from the swanky Phi Tau brawl sufficient to dig a little dirt. Also we trust you got over it enough to listen while the Stylus relates the latest occurrences in sinister fashion.

Query
What was the reason for the extreme wretchedness of Delt John Staples at Saturday night's festivities? And who was the dark little blue-eyed girl to whom he turned for consolation? We saw them sitting along the sidelines; she had a brilliant little hat on, and seemed to be doing her best to help Staples out. What was it all about?

Just Girl Crazy?
You wouldn't think that Uncle Enoch could be a stooge; neither would we exactly call him that, but he did have Delmar in class once, and here's the tale: Delmar didn't seem to get his lessons, didn't seem to pay attention in class, and had a perpetual case of jitters, so Prof. Grehan asked him what the matter was. Delmar sighed and looked out the window. "I don't know," he said pensively. "I guess I must be girl crazy."

Down Dunn's way they say that Sleepy Edmondson has a new cry. It's "Wolf, Wolf."

Another Query
While we were modestly pursuing our humble way along the corridor in McVey hall, we found a slip of paper. Here's what was written on it: "Mary Jane Collins.....Mary Jane Collins.....Mrs. Wallace Wallace.....Mr. and Mrs. Wallace and family.....oooh!" We want to know, so what?

Some time ago we printed a little squib about Frank Burger being

INSTANT INTERVIEWS

By RANDY RASH

QUESTION: "What in your opinion makes the freshman girls so popular?"

ANSWER: Howard Smathers, "The newness of the creature coupled with its stupidity and its envelopments in a thin veneer of innocence. This makes them the object of the campus' affection."

ANSWER: J. B. Wells, "Novelty, my friend, novelty."

Sugg conscious. We always like to print results. Well, the Triangle pin of Harry Davis is now adorning the lady in question. Congrats, you two.

Query No. 3

The Stylus is most quizzing today, but s'help us, we're trying to find things out. For instance, the Sigma Nu pledge, Don Luques, is "one of three" allowed to court Marge Powell. Who are the other two, please, and why only three?

Flat Statement

Just in case there should be any slippage or misinformation of any kind, be informed, youse mugs, that Kappa Sig Charlie Stephenson went to Urbana, Ohio, with Kaydee Betty Earle. Also that they went to see her father. But, said father is ill, and therein lies the reason for the visit. Repent, you sinners, and be ashamed for having thought such mean ugly things.

In June Perhaps

The campus in general is sure to remember the scandalmonger, Walt Clydier, of the KA lodge. Well, Walt left us sometime last semester, and from all information we can gather, he left for good. It seems that there's a true love in Louisville, and preparations are now being made for the long walk down the aisle.

What's the dope on this McGurk-Pennington combination? It seems to have been going on for a long time.

OBSERVATIONS: That Kappa Sig David Salyers doesn't seem to be with Virginia Robinson, the independent whiz, so much any more....That Delt Morton Potter has strayed away from the TriDelt stables....ATO Tommy Atkins may be the cause of it....That Alpha Gam Mildred Martin has a good story to tell on how she got her date for the Military Ball...."Tinker" Dean, not Dizzy by name but should be so called, went "high falutin'" on us and appeared at the brawl Saturday night in his "work clothes"....That the minute Woody Holbrook got his AlphaSig pin the other night he had a very fancy remark to make to O. P. Reuter, one of the inmates of that lodge....Jimmy Alrutz thinks there's nothing so lovely as a Sunny Day....Nobody can keep up with the many who court Kappa pledge, Bobby Smith....Nor can we find out who has the inside trail now....Headline in one of the state papers reads, "Jones Jerked to Jesus"....Initials, please?...Coffman has a choice line of riddles he will tell on the slightest provocation, as will Jack Crain....That PhiDelt Waller Hunt seems to be very interested in a certain Marjorie, is her name Stewart or Duncan?...After seeing a recent movie, Delmar thinks that he and Sag Kash and Lambda Chi Bill Smith and Algy Scott would make an ideal "Bomber" combination for the Ky. campus to yell for at games....Yes, we laughed too....Randy Rash, the KappaSig mosquito-bite, says his mother picked him off a rose bush....Mor'n likely it was under a cabbage leaf....PhiTau Billy Jacobs has pinned the one and only "little Audrey"....For a time Saturday night we thought Andy's band had gone "iam" on us....Or is it only jug bands who use bottles?...One of the warm sunny days last week we were stunned by this remark from Ernie Shovea, who wondered whether this "tropical sunshine didn't put the romance of the south seas in our blood?" Well, not exactly.

ANSWER: John Strother, S. A. E. neophyte, "Boys!"

ANSWER: Hunt Thomas, "Do you know of anything more useless than sting that does not sting?"

ANSWER: Frank Fowler, "Are they popular?"

ANSWER: W. T. Bishop, "I don't know why, but I 'do' think that they are."

QUESTION: "What is your opinion as to the practice of holding a general open house?"

ANSWER: An Alpha Delta Theta, "There are some good points and some bad points. The Sorority house is terribly crowded and you do not meet all the people present which is indeed a loss that cannot be easily overlooked."

ANSWER: An Alphasigma, "The open house is a convenient way of getting freshmen to know people and also gives the same opportunity to the upperclassmen who were not so fortunate."

ANSWER: An Alpha Xi, "It seems to me that it is very thrilling to the freshmen and very boring to the seniors."

ANSWER: A Tri-Delt, "I think that it is a very excellent idea. One meets so many enjoyable persons and gets better acquainted with those that one already knows."

ANSWER: A Delta Zeta, "I think that it is a very good idea since one gets to meet all the boys on the campus."

ANSWER: A Zeta Tau, "I don't think much of the practice. It is very boring to upperclassmen, though I suppose a few freshmen do enjoy it. But even most of them had rather go to Duns or a show."

ANSWER: A K. D., "I think that the plan should be continued because the pledges get to meet a lot of new boys, and many a date is the result."

ANSWER: A Kappa, "I think that it is a very good idea since one meets practically everyone that is somebody on the campus."

ANSWER: A Chio, "I think that most of them are boring, but it does give you something to do on Friday afternoon. Then too, sometimes they lead to love affairs and the acquisition of fraternity jewelry."

John Davis Haggard, author of "Boone Moves On," "My Buddy," and many other plays, was born in Evansville, Tenn., March 2, 1913. When you go home from a game exhausted and hoarse, blame it on John, for he is one of those cheerleaders, and 'tis hoped that he can wring the last drop of enthusiasm from a crowd of spectators. Last year he was captain of the golf team, and this is his favorite sport. He has never made a hole-in-one, says he never expects to.

Diary: Up at seven and typed journalism notes. Breakfasted in my usual solitary custom and tripped off to school. Listened to Professor Knight saying that sooner or later we should all be disillusioned with life. Counted my many blessings, walked around my chair three times and sat on my handkerchief in true Irish fashion in order to combat the dastardly future Mr. Knight predicted. Played bridge in the commons, listened to Betty Anne Pennington's chit-chat. In the afternoon watched Bill Carrel's newest patented dance step and conversed with Uncle Enoch on the problems of life in general. Studied in the evening and attended a rehearsal that night. Fell asleep over Mr. Brook's text on political parties.

I dislike Dunn's for various and sundry reasons. But it's the only sort of general meeting and gathering place known to this Student Unionless campus. Accordingly, I met a little, very little, snubish person who seemed disillusioned with life in general. Dark, she was, and seemed to look deep into herself instead of out into the world. After a preliminary discussion of things unimportant, we launched into the why of her attitude. "I'm ready to jump off the bridge or anything like that," she said; "but although I still feel I had rather live than suddenly cease to be, somehow I can't help but feel bewildered about so many things that I am ingrown and dull."

She doesn't like school. She thinks she'd be better off doing something practical, something with her hands. Something tangible, and real. But there are guardians, and they have disposed of her in the easiest manner.

Seeing the thing from an entirely feminine point of view, I should say that Dean Jones did the wise thing when he asked for no "Hell-week" outside of fraternity houses. The poor kids get enough of it while they're inside their own territory. I've heard nine out of every ten freshmen come out of it with a firm resolution to get even; thereby taking out on somebody else what he himself has been subjected to. And the maxims of "talking it" used by fraternity members is so ridiculous as to be altogether useless. There's nothing wrong in learning to take a beating, not the physical kind, at least.

SEEN FROM THE PRESS BOX

By JAY LUCIAN

The fast-wearing Wildcat machine was nearly stopped by the inspired Vols last Saturday night, with Tucker and Anderson out of the regular line-up. Only four games remain, two with Creighton and one each with Vanderbilt and St. Xavier. Creighton has a good team this year and the game will undoubtedly be close. Kentucky should win their conference game with Vanderbilt to maintain their unbeaten record in the conference, together with the championship.

This will make the third straight year that Kentucky has not lost a conference game.

The clash between Demolsey's and Sale's teams last week was interesting to watch from the coaches' angle. Both teams showed the rudiments of machine-like play which is seldom seen in high school aggregations. The usual style of the average high school net lads is to grab the ball and break for the basket. Boys at that tender age are hard to discipline in teamwork. The fact that both teams showed embryonic restraint and a fair amount of team play speaks well for the coaching abilities of both Sale and Demolsey. It reveals what these two former stars could do if they had the material to work with.

Darrel Darby did an excellent job during the match with his impartial refereeing. Not a boo arose during the contest at his decisions. Darby has played as a regular for four years on championship high school teams and three years as a regular on the Kentucky varsity. He was a regular both when Ashland won the National Inter-scholastic title and when Kentucky won the first Southeastern conference title. Through these years of constant play the rules have become second nature to him. Darby seems to have a natural knack for refereeing and he should go far with his impartial mien in the field of basketball arbitration.

While various columnists on this bi-weekly gazette spend their time tossing orchids, flattery, publicity and high school entertainment at one another I am tempted to enter their realm for a moment to toss

THINLIES WILL MEET VANDY FIRST

Cochman Bernie Shively's Wildcat track team will open their '35 schedule with the Vanderbilt University thinlies on Stoll field, April 13.

The schedule calls for five dual meets and the Southeastern conference meet at Birmingham, May 18. Three of the five meets will be held in Lexington. They include meets with Vandy, and one each with Berea and Tennessee, on April 30 and May 4, respectively. The Kentucky track stars will journey to Atlanta for a meet with the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets on April 20, and to Hanover, Indiana, on April 27, where they will run against the Hanover college team.

Approximately 30 candidates are reporting daily to Coach Bernie Shively and several more are expected to report later. The track and field are in poor condition and has hindered the progress of the candidates who are making an effort to be members of the current edition of the Wildcat track squad.

The team will be built around Rupert, McMillen, Heckmen, Olah, Nevers, Jobe, in the weights, and Willis, Long, Hocker, and Ellis, dash and distance men.

The candidates that have reported are Billy Miller, Coleman, Ellis, Gates, Crain, Futrell, Scott, Walker, Spragens, Travis, Al Miller, Ben Willis, Dyer, Gene Bryant, Hunt, Smith, Hocker, Wallace, Vaughn, Kelly, Moore, Ledridge, Olney, Adams, Ford, Sympton, Murphy, Dickey, Coffman.

Mr. Breckinridge was a member of the Presbyterian church, of which his grandfather, Dr. Robert J. Breckinridge, was one of the outstanding Kentucky ministers. His club memberships were in the Princeton Club of New York, the Pendergill Club, Louisville, and the Lexington Country Club, and Lexington Union Club.

He was married Nov. 17, 1898 to Miss Madeline McDowell, a daughter of Major Henry Clay McDowell and Mrs. Anne Clay McDowell. She was a leader in the woman's suffrage movement, and in the campaign that made possible the establishment of Lincoln school. She died November 25, 1920.

Mr. Breckinridge's second wife, who survives him, was Mrs. Mary

Frazer LeBus, widow of Clarence LeBus. They were married in 1929. Besides his wife, he is survived by a brother, Robert J. Breckinridge, and two sisters, Mrs. Lyman B. Chalkley, Lexington, and Dr. Sophonisba Breckinridge, Chicago.

Grayson High Is Easy for Kittens

DeMoisey Five Outclassed by McBrayer's Flashy Kavanaugh Quintet

Two former Wildcat basketball captains and All-Southern players pitted their teams against each other in the Alumni gym Friday night and Coach Paul McBrayer's Kentucky Kittens defeated the Pritchard High school of Grayson, coached by "Frenchy" DeMoisey, by a score of 43 to 12.

Coach McBrayer used 17 men, letting his first five play but the first and third quarters. During the first quarter, Spicer, Davis, Walker, Craig, and Robinson ran up a score of 16 points to two for the visitors. With the second team in the game during the next quarter, the Grayson boys failed to score but held their opponents to two points, trailing by 18 to 2 at half time.

At the start of the third stanza, McBrayer sent his regulars back into the fray and they advanced the score to 29 to 5 for "Frenchy's" boys. The second, third, and fourth stringers carried on during the remaining part of the game.

Two red-heads led the froth attack in scoring. "Red" Hagen, former St. Xavier star, and "Red" Craig, former Ashland High star, with eight points each, were high point men.

The freshmen had the advantage of height and experience over the high school boys and these factors proved too much for the losers.
